OBSERVING FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Surrounded by Large Family of Sons and Daughters and Grandsons and Granddaughters, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Wise Are Enjoying Happy Time

Surrounded by a happy family of children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Wise are today observing the 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home at 121 Shady avenue. The guest list comprises the sons and daughters and grandsons and granddaughters, with a few intimate friends. A one o'clock dinner was a big feature of the celebration.

Mr. Wise was born in Steubenville, Ohio, in 1832, just 83 years ago. Mrs. Wise, whose maiden name was Matilda R. Hobbs and who is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hanson Hobbs of New Cumberland, W. Va., was born in 1843.

The wedding of the couple took place at the Hobbs' home in New Cumberland in April, 1865, Rev. S. F. Greer, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of that place performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Wise lived in Steubenville, Ohio, for a number of years, then moved to New Cumberland, to remain for a time. Four children were born to the couple in Steubenville and after their removal to New Cumberland four others were born.

Twenty-three years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Wise came to Charleroi. The "Magic City" of the Monongahela valley was just in its infancy, and the couple located on Crest avenue near what is now Ninth street. Mr. Wise assumed employment as a carpenter, having followed this vocation since early in life. He has really not yet given up this employment, though compelled by advancing age to ease up somewhat from his former activities.

In the family are five daughters and three sons. They are as follows: Mrs. William Crraig of Maple Creek; Miss Ella Wise at home; Mrs. U. S. Orange of Third street, Charleroi; Mrs. F. O. Leonard of Buckhannon, W. Va.; Mrs. William McCullough, of Monaca; John Wise of Maple Creek, Fred Wise of Youngstown, Ohio; and Frank Wise of Jeannette. With the Wise family a sister, Miss Lydia A. Wise who is in her 86th year, resides and in the family groups as they are photographed, she is always an honored member.

Decorations of the home are in golden and the gifts which are being showered in profusion upon the happy couple by the eight sons and daughters and 21 grandchildren are all in gold. The observance follows the nature to a degree of a family reunion.

BELLE VERNON CLOSES IN ON AUTO DRIVERS

An Even Score of Motorists Counted And Accused of Violations of Auto Laws---Arrests Being Made as Rapidly as Possible

Charleroi, Monessen, Monongahela, Donora, Pittsburg, Washington, Brownsville and Uniontown are not the only strict towns in this hemisphere. Belle Vernon respectfully begs to be admitted to the honor role and his proved itself by courageously attempting rigid enforcement of those sadly misused statutes known as automobile laws.

Belle Vernon has a burgess in Harry R. Boyd that does things unexpectedly. Officer Don Morris in this line is a capable assistant. These two statements furnish ample explanation why on Sunday an even score of speeding autoists were counted and their numbers taken as they started on high gear from Main street up the hill. Eventually these 20 motorists will be hailed before the bar of justice—said bar being Burgess Boyd's police court—and there justice of the kind that will make envious Charleroi, Monessen and the rest of that bunch of towns will be doled out. Arrests are being made as names are associated with numbers.

Officer Morris appeared in plain clothes Sunday and his beat was Main street where there has been speeding previously reported. His success at getting things was undisputed, as some are yet to learn.

Petitions for Improvement of Highways Presented to the Court Monday

WILL GO BEFORE GRAND JURY

May 10 is Set as Date and Advertising Matter is Now Being Run—Important Highways Included in List Suggested for Improvement.

The county commissioners Monday presented to the court petitions asking for the putting of a number of roads before the coming grand jury. The court has directed that this be done and they will be presented on Monday, May 10, at 1 o'clock. Three of the roads are new highways which it is proposed to have improved with brick. There are five roads on which the commissioners ask for the approval of concrete improvement, which road material the commissioners recently inspected in Wayne county, Michigan.

The roads and facts concerning them are as follows:

McPherson-Boyce road, beginning at McPherson's mill in Cecil township and extending northeastwardly through lands of Hickman estate, S. N. Hopper, Pittsburg Coal company et al a distance of 12,207.6 feet to the Allegheny county line. The total estimate, including ten percent for incidentals, paved with brick is $48,187.70.

Avella Manchester road, beginning at the south end of the brick road constructed by Independence township and extending south 6,600 feet to a state road, the entire distance in Independence township. The total estimated cost, including ten per cent for incidentals, paved with brick, is $27,038.

Avella-Independence road, beginning at the southwestern end of the brick road constructed by Independence township and extending southwest 6,600 to a point on the lands of J. E. Perrin, the entire distance in estimated cost, including ten per cent for incidentals, paved with brick is $26,317.50.

The roads which have been approved by the grand jury for construction with brick and for which the commissioners ask permission of the grand jury to substitute concrete at their own discretion are as follows, they being roads that are to be built this summer.

Beallsville-Fredericktown road a distance of 1.6 miles in Deemston and East Bethlehem townships. The estimated costs of the construction with concrete, including ten per cent for incidentals is $25,241.25, or $15,766 per mile.

Washington-Bethany road in Hopewell, Blaine, Donegal and Independence township, distance of one mile. The estimated cost for concrete is $17,895.01, including ten per cent for incidentals.

REDEEMING THE PLEDGES

The governor of recent times has fought harder and more intelligently for the redemption of campaign pledges than has Gov. Martin G. Brumbaugh's nomination is certain of fulfillment. The governor has been having some trouble with his own personal pledges, but he is not without confidence that all of them will be redeemed.

The people of the entire state will this week watch for developments in the local option controversy. Gov. Brumbaugh is confident that he will be able to pass that legislation in the lower house, but the lines for and against that issue were drawn during the campaign and are not easily changed. While Gov. Brumbaugh was not pledged to pass the legislation he pledged himself to give it substantial support and this he has been doing with rare skill and industry.

Gov. Brumbaugh's child labor legislation, one of his party pledges, is now assured. His workingmen's compensation bill, also a party measure, is on the high road to final enactment, and while the session is drawing to a close it is certain to be the most constructive legislature Pennsylvania has enjoyed in years.

What the Republican party has now is strengthened and reinforced. It has kept faith with the people. It is certain to redeem its pledges and at the end of the present session of the legislature the party will have come through the political confusion of recent years with an unstained record for substantial achievement

WORKING THROUGH COLLEGE

Although the expenses of sending a boy or girl through college are steadily increasing, yet the number who work their own way through seems to be gaining as fast or faster.

It is one of the fine things about college life, says an exchange that students who are working their own way seem to stand well socially. They may not get as many invitations, simply because they are carrying papers or driving grocery wagons, at times when their classmates are hanging around the society rooms making friends. But no disgrace attaches to work. Social lines may divide their parents in their home town. But young people are more generous than grown ups, and are not apt to draw arbitary lines of distinction.

Young people who work their own way get quite as much out of college as anyone else. They may not acquire quite as much of the social polish that comes from tea tables and chapter houses. But they are living a life of earnest effort, which always brings reward.

The average college boy, financed by a generous father can hardly be said to live a life of earnest effort. He drills along in the regular goose-step and can pass his marks without any strenuous exertion. He does put earnest effort into his athletics which has its value. But wether or no speed to reach first base helps a boy tackle the hard drudgery of supporting a family later on, is an open question.

It would seem as if the person who has worked his way though college were entitled not merely to whatever honors he may win on his scholastic standing, but to some special mark of distinction. Certainly his achievement is infinitely greater than that of the student who has simply used the tools which parents have bought and paid for.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Young Stuart, despite his brief span upon this vale of tears has developed considerable deductive powers. He has a crowd of crude mates whose language he sometimes employs, but aside from calling grave and reverend seniors "old nut" or some such appellations, he's doing very well especially with his vocabulary.

The other day Stuart was looking over some highly colored pictures of scenes natural and artificial and after identifying "the spink," "the pimpods," "Gibraltar" and a few others he was shown the green hights of Lookout mountain.

"Now, Stuart," asked Uncle Tom "why do you suppose they call it Lookout mountain?"

Stuart looked steadily at the abrupt contours of the Tennessee peak as idealized by a Louisville lithography, then he smiled, remembering sundry loud warnings from all members of the family during his various climbing operations about the house and replied:

"So you won't fall off."

It was never a happy day for Sammy's painstaking father when his young hopeful's school report arrived.

As for Sammy himself—well he was a philosopher.

The awful day had come once more and father was in the lowest depths of misery.

"Sammy—Sammy,".. he. groaned. "why is it that you are at the bottom of your class again?"

"What does it matter, father, whether I am at the top or the bottom?" queried that wise youth. "They teach the same at both ends, you know"

An aviator was flying across a state when a hickory wrench which had been fastened to the seat of the aeroplane was jarred loose in some manner and fell.

A motorist who had lost his way was speeding along a strange country road when the wrench dropped from the aeroplane, struck him on the head and killed him instantly.

The chances of the monkey wrench doing at all were about one in 100,000. The chances of the aviator being in that identical spot when the wrench fell were about one in 100,000,000. The chances of the motorist being directly under the wrench when it landed were about one in 900,000,000,000,000.

And when they searched the motorist at the morgue they found that he wore a four leaf clover in a stickpin a swastika on his watch charm and a rabbit foot on his key ring. And he had a lucky stone in his pocket, and there was an old horseshoe nailed on to the seat of his automobile

PLAN TO RAISE MANY MILLIONS

Legislature Wants to Replenish State Treasury.

NEED MONEY FOR GOOD ROADS

Separate Fund For Highways Will Be Created and Revenue Raised on Coal, Automobiles, Stocks and Other Things Will Be Dedicated Specifically to Road Improvements.

Harrisburg, April 20.—An ambitious plan to raise revenues for the state without going to the extreme of confiscating the personal property tax has been devised, and if certain measures pass the legislature there should be ample funds for good roads in the future. The money is to be specifically dedicated to the highway fund and cannot be used for general purposes.

The joint legislative committee met with the governor and the attorney general in reaching the agreement on the revenue raisers. It is believed that as a result of the conference over $6,000,000 will annually be added to the state treasury. Following are the approximate receipts yearly from the proposed acts:

New anthracite tax, $4,500,000.

Fifty per cent increase in automobile license fees, $600,000.

Tax on stock transfers, $700,000.

Relief from paying primary election expenses, $800,000 Total, $6,400,000.

There is a difference of opinion as to the percentage which should be returned to the coal counties on the anthracite tax. The present bill provides that the state shall retain 66 2-3 per cent The counties want at least a 50-50 division. It is suggested as a compromise that the state retain 60 per cent. and the counties receive 40 per cent., with the state paying the 1 per cent. for the cost of collections.

As to the stock transfer tax, a tax of two cents on each $100 share transferred is contemplated. New York received $5,000,000 annually from this source. Then it is proposed that an escheat bill be passed under the terms of which all unclaimed moneys in the banks would become the property of the state after ten years. This, of course, is an unknown quantity, but it is believed that there are millions of such funds throughout the state. The bill requires the officers of the banks to inform the state of all unclaimed funds. And when the attorney general's office is reorganized into a department of justice, with all attorneys employed by the commonwealth working under the direction of the attorney general, it is believed that escheats may be more readily and quickly realized.

The state will carry its own insurance on all state property in the future, and this will save $100,000 annually in premiums. The bill to oblige relatives of so-called indigent insane to bear the expenses of maintaining the patients will, when enacted, open up a fruitful field for saving expenses. As it is now, the state pays $2.50 a week for the keeping of each indigent insane person. These patients very often have relatives who could well afford to pay the charges.

As announced in these columns at the time of the resignation of Edwin M. Bigelow as highway commissioner, Robert J. Cunningham is the choice of Governor Brumbaugh for the place. His name has been sent to the senate, where it was promptly confirmed by that body.

About the same time Senator Sproul introduced the administration bill to govern the supervision and construction of highways for the next two years. All present highway routes will be retained. The bill calls for an appropriation of $8,500,000 and does not include the administration expenses of the department.

With the announcement of Cunningham's appointment, which has been considered certain for some time, it was learned that the governor personally would look after the workings of the department. He will be the head of a board of three, with the newly appointed commissioner and William D. Uhler, who was named chief engineer of the department last week.

The council, as a combination of brains, experience and ideas, will plan and evolve the details of road construction and maintenance.

The bill to abolish the fee system for county officers in counties having less than 150,000 population and substituting a salary schedule, was defeated in the house a few days ago, receiving only twenty votes. One hundred and fifty one members voted in the negative.

Mr. Spangler, of York, who drafted the bill, spoke for it and engaged in a debate with Mr. Milliron, of Armstrong, who called the bill a "crazy quilt." Mr. Spangler retorted that it would bring order out of chaos, and Mr. Barnett, of York, said county officers received too much under the fee system, some sheriffs getting more than the governor. Mr. Campbell, of Butler, urged the bill, and Mr. Habgood, of McKean, opposed it.

The Stein bill giving equal rights in places of public entertainment to every person regardless of race, color or creed, was passed finally in the house by a vote of 138 to 34.

The Howarth bill providing for a state system of licensure for barbers has been defeated.

The Catlin bill to compel posting of primary election returns is now a law, the governor having recently approved it.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Sir William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 249:

"The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. * * * In the granulations products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of lime salts in the treatment of tuberculosis, and the success of Eckman's Alterative in this and allied throat and bronchial affections may be due partly to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Widespread use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis—many of which appear to have yielded completely to it—justifies our belief that it is worth a trial, unless some other treatment already is succeeding. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. We make no promises concerning it any more that reputable physicians give promises with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which IT HAS HELPED.

SHADOW PICTURES.

The Silhouette as the Origin of All Pictorial Art.

In the year 1759, when Etienne de Silhouette was minister of finance under Louis XV., a man whose name has not been preserved started in Paris an exhibition that he called Chinese shadows. This consisted in throwing upon a sheet the black outlines of men or objects and making these shadows take part in a play. It so happened that at this time Silhouette was unpopular. He had spent many years in England and had returned to his native country greatly impressed with English methods of public economy. Undertaking to apply these principles to French finances, he met with decided disapproval by the Parisians. But little thanks did he get except to have his efforts branded as parsimonious.

Some one recalled that M. de Silhouette had written a book, "A General Idea For the Government of the Chinese," in which he exploited his economical theories. The popularity of the Chinese shadows was responsible for the jibe that Silhouette had issued the book as an advance notice for the show; hence the shadows were called silhouettes, and the name was naturally extended to portraits that were then coming into vogue, in which were presented only the outlines of faces and figures filled in with black.

Though the fashion and the name of the silhouette are of comparatively recent origin, the art itself is ancient. It was used by Etruscan potters eight centuries before Christ, and a classic legend, which has been illustrated by Benjamin West in a famous picture called "The Origin of Painting," claimed that all pictorial art originated in an attempt to paint the fleeting shadows of men and women as they fell upon a wall or a blank space.—Detroit Free Press.

DAY OF THE QUILL PEN.

When Writing Paper Was Poor and Envelopes Were Unknown.

The constant mending required by quill pens must have proved a severe trial in the days when no others were available, says the London Chronicle. Alexander I. of Russia thought it necessary to employ a man whose sole duty consisted in cutting pens. He was required to have a supply of not less than 100 quills always ready.

This number was by no means excessive, for Alexander would never use the same pen twice. Even the writing of a signature spoiled a pen, in his opinion, for subsequent use. The quill cutter, who received a salary of £340 a year, accompanied the czar on all his journeys, including campaigns against Napoleon.

Writing implements changed considerably for the better during Sir Walter Gilbey's long spell of life. "Though quill pens are still in use," he remarks in his "Recollections of Seventy Years," "I remember the time when one seldom saw any other kind. Steel pens in their early days were expensive and ill made, and few people used them. The paper we had seventy years ago may have been partly to blame. It had neither the substance nor the surface we take as a matter of course nowadays.

"I remember when envelopes came into use, and what a boon they were considered after the old system of closing letters with wafers or wax. Before envelopes were invented letters were always written with an eye to the position of the wafer or seal, a blank space being left to correspond with the space where this would be put on the outside, lest the written portion should be torn in opening."—New York Sun.

Military Music.

"No one in time of peace can understand what war is," writes Rev. Charles E. Jefferson in the Woman's Home Companion. "We may prepare for it, but we do not realize what it is we are preparing for. Military preparations are quite interesting, even exciting. Boys and girls are always fascinated by the paraphernalia of battle. Never have the instruments of war been so intricate and sparkling as now. All the trappings of the military world are alluring.

"Military music is full of piercing notes, which set the corpuscles of the blood dancing. But military music is not the music of war. The music of war is the groans of wounded and dying men and the sobs of broken hearted women. Military music is one of the embroidered veils thrown over the face of war to make boys think that war is glorious."

A Mulberry Tree Legend.

The mulberry, "wisest of trees," as Pliny termed it, really "likes" London and fruits profusely even in the grounds of the Charterhouse, at murky Smithfield. London mulberry trees are mainly derived from a fad of James I., who wanted to found a silk growing industry. With the proverbial folly of a pedant, the British Solomon introduced the black mulberry, disliked by silkworms, instead of the white variety, which forms their food. The black mulberry had been planted by Cardinal Pole at Lambeth in 1555, and there were still older specimens in the garden of Syon House. According to a pretty Greek legend, all mulberries were originally white, but a mulberry tree was growing beside "Ninny's tomb" when Pyramus and Thisbe died there, and the blood of the lovers turned the fruit to its present color.

THEY LIKE PRISON LIFE.

A Class of Persons In Japan Who Try to Break Into Jail.

In Japan there are people who make sham confessions in order to obtain a period of the comparative warmth and comfort of a Japanese prison. The Japan Mail says: "The police slang of the capital has words to describe and distinguish these persons. 'Meshi-hai' or the rice criminal, will steal some small article from a shop front in such a way as to be seen doing it. He then makes a bolt of it, pursued by the master of the shop, or some faithful kozo, but presently allows himself to be caught and handed to the police. He has to 'do time' for his pretended theft, but his rice is secured for a period, and when that period has elapsed he will allow himself to be caught again.

"The 'unando,' or 'eelbowl' criminal is wilier than the one just mentioned. He does not actually commit a crime such as will put him into the convict side of the prison, but allows himself to be found looking in suspicious places, underneath the broad verandas of a temple, or in the garden of a private house. He gets into prison all right, but he secures the more generous treatment of the house of detention, which is to the fare of the convict jail what a dish of eels is to a bowl of plain rice.

"The 'kuruma' is a criminal who makes a sham confession in order to get a free railway ride. Recently a man gave himself up to the police in Sendai as the perpetrator of the crime. He was brought to Tokyo and his story investigated. It was found to be a pure fabrication."

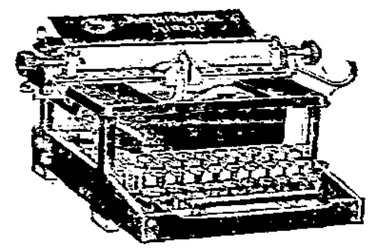
Why this man bought a Remington Junior Typewriter



"I have been investigating several of the recent makes of machines, seeking for one of simple construction for ordinary manuscript and letter writing. I was nearly ready to buy a machine of another make when I just happened to see for the first time the Remington Junior, and found it to be the very thing I wanted; and that was a typewriter built simpler and not incumbered with fixtures not needed for writing ordinary manuscript or letters."

The man who wrote this is the postmaster of a small Southern town. He is only one of thousands who have recently bought a Remington Junior. But his reasons apply to everybody—they apply to YOU.

The Remington Junior is our latest product and the latest idea in typewriting.

It is strictly a high-grade machine.

It has the Remington Name, the Remington Guarantee, the Remington Quality—everything Remington except weight and bulk.

"A Simplified Remington" describes it exactly.

And its price is

in several divorce suits that are pending were filed Monday. Hannah Lizzie Storrick of Rich Hill, tells a story of abuse from her husband covering a period of 26 years. She says that "life with her for 26 years had been such as would have been beyond the endurance of any ordinary woman." The couple have children now grown up. They are natives of England and were married in that country on October 27, 1888. They got along very well for a year, but according to the testimony of the wife, her husband began drinking and that was the beginning of a very unhappy married life that extended over many years. He would come home drunk, staying late at night and abuse her. Five years after their marriage they came to America. Here he kept up his abuse. At one time he left her and wandered to the hard coal regions. A brother-in-law compelled him to return to her. Finally they returned to England. There bad company and bad conduct finally disgraced him and he ran away to Scotland. He later wrote to her, begged leave to return to her, promising to do better. They agreed again to live together and returned to America, locating at Rich Hill. No sooner were they located, says the wife than the husband again began drinking and mistreating her. She finally left him on February 15, 1915.

Ada B. Kemp of Washington in her testimony in her suit against John H. Kemp, simply tells of her husband deserting her and failing to support her and their five children. They were married October 28, 1887, and lived together until December 14, 1906.

Richard W. VanSickle, formerly of Scottdale, but now living in this county, testifies that his wife Bessie Van Sickle deserted him. They were married January 26, 1906 and lived together for three years.

MONONGAHELA IS BANNER DIVISION

Pennsylvania Railroad Dope Shows Local Service is Among the Best

TRAINS ARRIVE ON TIME

The Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania Railroad was one of the banner divisions of the Pennsylvania System in March, having with two other divisions the best records for trains arriving on time. The following "dope" on train service has been given out by the railroad:

The Pennsylvania Railroad operated 70,196 passenger trains in March and 64,067 of them—91.3 per cent—arrived at their destinations "on time". On the New York division—that part of the railroad between New York and Philadelphia, and the division having the heaviest passenger traffic of the railroad—11,146 trains were operated and 10,166, or 91.2 per cent of them arrived "on time". The Pittsburg Division operated 5,292 trains and 4,999, or 94.5 per cent of them made a perfect record. On the electric line of the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad, out of 2,480 trains, 98.2 per cent arrived "on time".

Three divisions, the Allegheny, West Jersey & Seashore, steam service, and the Monongahela, had more than 97 per cent of their trains arrive "on time". The Conemaugh and Media Divisions had records of 96 per cent perfect, while the Bellwood, Tyrone, Renovo, Sunbury, Elmira, Trenton, Schuylkill and Manhattan divisions had more than 94 per cent of their trains arrive "on time".

Every effort is being made by the Pennsylvasia Railroad to expedite the movements of passenger trains so that no passenger will suffer annoyance from delays.
